About Lamaari

At Lamaari, we believe that luxury lies in authenticity. Inspired by the rich cultural heritage of Assam and Northeast India, our journey began with a simple vision—bringing the soul of handmade craftsmanship to modern homes. With every weave, carve, and knot, we celebrate the skill of artisans who transform natural fibers into timeless treasures.

Welcome to a world where artistry meets purpose.

Where Art Meets Purpose

Luxury isn't just how something looks—it's how it's made, how it lasts, and how it makes you feel.

Loomed in Grace, Worn in Pride

Every strand carries centuries of tradition, every weave tells a story of resilience.

The Crown Jewels of Lamdari

In the lush landscapes of Assam, three silks reign supreme: Eri (peace silk), Muga (golden silk), and Paat (mulberry silk). For generations, our artisans have spun these threads into fabrics that shimmer with timeless elegance. Each piece is a labor of love—hand-reeled, naturally dyed, and woven on traditional looms.

Ethically Sourced

No silkworms harmed in Eri silk production.

Unmatched Heritage

Muga silk, exclusive to Assam, grows more luminous with age.

Breathable & Hypoallergenic

Paat silk's smooth texture suits sensitive skin.

Regal Applications

Heirloom Apparel

Sarees, scarves, and dupattas that become family treasures.

Luxe Accents

Cushion covers, table runners, and wall hangings.

Limitless Majesty

Dye it, embroider it, frame it—your reign, your rules.
